Arsenical Poison for the Codling Moth.

The State Entomologist of Il mois Prof. S. A. Forbes, reports to the Illinois Department of Agriculture claborate experiments made in the apple orchard with the arsenical poisons, the esults of which show that an average of at least 70 per cent of the apples now destroyed or injured by the codling moth may be saved to ripening by one or two sprayings with paris green made in early spring, whi e the fruit is not larger than a hazel nut. Taking one vear with another, the codling moth is found to intest about one-half the apples which set on the trees, and, making all reasonable allowance, it is estimated that the general use of the spraying method must effect a saving to the State in the increased value of the apple crop of at least $1,500,000 annual

The cost of the application would be ractically nothing so far as the codling oth injuries are concerned, as the enefit to the trees and the crop re-ultng from the destruction of curculios canker worms, and other minor leaf and fruit insects must more than return the small expense of spraying. Observations and analyses have shown that there is not the slightest danger to the consumer of the truit from poisoning the trees thus early in the season, when theyare very sma I and before they have turned downwards on their stems. The experiments show, however, that late poisoning is dangerous, and furthermore, is without effect upon the codling moth. Paris green was found more effective than London purple or solutions of ar-enic, and time had no effect at all. The experiments on which these statements rest were made under widely varying conditions, during two successive years on several varieties of fruit, the total number of apples exammed being nearly 40,000.

Washed-Out Hair. There is a sort of pallid, chalky comolexion which the poyelists call washed out complexion. It is ghastly enough and no mistake. Washed-out, faded, discolored, or parti-colored hair is al most as repulsive and melancholy. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was; brown, anburn or black. Why wear moss on your head, when you may easily have lively, staining hair.

The Uses of Straw.

The value of straw is too little taken nto account either on or off the farm. Too many farmers seem to act on the rinciple that it should be led to cattle. This is the least important of its uses Its value as food is so slight that cattle fed exclusively on straw would die about as soon as when fed on any such substance, as dead leaves, for instance, the only use of which is to properly distend the stomach. The feeding use of straw, therefore, is only in connec tion with concentrated food.

But there are other uses of the straw Gilbert A. Pierce, who re centlyres igned the governorship of Dakota, has accepted the position of associate a liter. as bedding for animals. Another use to which it may be profitably used when which is Serrefutions Discusse of the Lange, is promptly and extandy arrested and curved by this God given remedy, it taken before the lart stages of the disease are rached. These walls may be made of any rough material, as slabs, poles, but near enough together to pre vent the pulling out of straw by the animals. Thus sheds and stables may be rendered as warm as much more costly structures. The use of straw 11 too much ignored Liver, Blood, and Lungs. is a means of comfort used as bedding for animals. Intubation of the Larynx.

The operation of tracheotomy, by which an opening is made with the knife into the windpipe for the reliet d membranous croup and diphtheris, seems likely to be superseded by the intubation of the larynx. In this new operation a small tube is inserted through the mouth into the windpipe, and all necessity for a cutting operation is thus avoided. It is claimed by ment that it is far easier to introduce this tube than to perform tracheotomy, and that more lives are saved than by the old operation. The statistics which are given in the medical journals go far to confirm their opinions, and as the process is being generally introduced. but little time will be necessary to substantiate the claims made for it .- Sci-
